

UPCOMING

JUNE 5TH, 2023*World Environment Day

Join the UN Environment Programme in Celebrating World Environment Day with the Theme of "Beat Plastic Pollution"

This year, Côte d'Ivoire will host the event in collaboration with the Netherlands. The Netherlands has a rich background in international development cooperation and environmental preservation, making them an excellent partner for this year's celebration. If you want to learn more about the Dutch's history in international cooperation projects, check out one of our timelines.

Elizabeth Corro

Hello everyone! My name is Elizabeth, and I am 22 years old. I joined NICC about a month ago to assist the team with the Global Citizenship and Climate Change timelines. I was born and raised in Panama City, Panama, and moved to the Netherlands in 2019 to pursue my bachelor's degree in Political Science, specializing in International Relations and Organizations at Leiden University, Campus The Hague. Additionally, I took a minor about climate change science, adaptation, and mitigation strategies at TU Delft, and did my thesis on climate justice, specifically intergenerational justice and justice of recognition. Most recently, I was admitted to be part of the Navigating Climate Justice training by the Climate Reality Project Europe.

I am extremely eager to join the NICC team to put my extensive academic record on topics of international relations, international cooperation, history, and, of course, climate change and environmental conservation into practice!

WHATS NEW?

We are thrilled to share that our Women's Economic Empowerment timeline is now accessible for you to view. We highly value your opinions and would love to hear what you think. Moreover, we are in the process of creating a Global Citizenship timeline that focuses on the Netherlands' efforts to promote responsibility beyond national borders, along with the history of this topic. We will be hosting an event related to this timeline as well! For further information, please visit stichtingnicc.nl.
