A look back at the NICC Summer Network Event

The evening was kicked off by intern Jochem Delvaux, introducing the new Global Citizenship timeline. Inspired by the NCDO archive, this timeline provides a historical overview of the development of the concept of global citizenship in the Netherlands. In his presentation, Jochem focused on the post-war period, although there will also be room for deeper historical context in future versions of the timeline.

As the second speaker of the evening, intern Elizabeth Corro took the stage with a presentation on global citizenship and climate justice. Thinking about global citizenship is crucial in tackling climate issues world wide, especially given that countries that emit the least, often suffer the greatest consequences of climate change.

Despite the relatively small turnout, lively interaction between speakers and audience was present throughout the evening. Listeners were not hesitant to ask questions, to cast their critical gaze on the new timeline and to share their own perceptions on the concept of global citizenship. All valuable insights that contribute to a successful and educational evening, making it definitely worth repeating!

WHATS NEW?

We are thrilled to share that the first version of our Global Citizenship Timeline is now accessible for you to view. We highly value your opinions and would love to hear what you think. The timeline is still in development, so don't be shy to share your thoughts. Furthermore, we have started to work on a topic-timeline on the history of the NC(D)O and its relationship to Dutch Development Cooperation and Global Citizenship. For this timeline, we are looking for more volunteers and resource persons. Interested? Let us know!
